The nation's six largest banks reported on Monday revenue of nearly $42 billion in the fourth quarter of 2011, the same amount as last year, according to the Federal Reserve. Bank officials expect to generate $42.1 billion in revenue in the current quarter, up 4% from the fourth quarter of 2010, according to a report on Monday by the Fed. The Fed found that total net income rose to $24.5 billion from $23.6 billion, but was down 16% from a year ago. "The industry's strong performance in the final quarter of 2011 is consistent with our expectation that capital will be provided at more reasonable levels by regulatory agencies and the private sector, allowing banks to utilize their increased profits to meet their obligations in the near-term, rather than being leveraged in ways that put significant pressure on their overall capital, economic and credit risk-based capital ratios, which are elevated when compared with the required statutory requirements," the Fed wrote. The six largest U.S. banks reported $22.3 billion in profit during the quarter. That's down 10% from a year ago. Bank of America, the nation's largest, reported $3.9 billion in profit during the fourth quarter of 2011, down 11% from a year ago. Bank of America is required by regulators to maintain capital levels of at least 7.5% of its total assets. Deutsche Bank reported a $2.2 billion profit during the fourth quarter of 2011, down 2% from a year ago. Wells Fargo reported a $2.2 billion profit during the fourth quarter of 2011, down 18% from a year ago. U.S. Bank reported a profit of $690 million during the fourth quarter of 2011, a net loss of $2.4 billion from a year ago. Citigroup reported a profit of $1.2 billion during the fourth quarter of 2011, up 9% from a year ago. The Fed said in the report that they expect the nation's largest banks to report $155 billion in revenue this quarter, down from a previous expectation of $158 billion. They also expect them to report $19.2 billion in net income, down from a previous expectation of $20.2 billion.
